TRANSFORMING STUDENT SUCCESS CONFERENCE 2017

Annual National Male Student Success Conference
Florida TRiO Student Leadership Conference

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

The University of Central Florida's Division of Student Development and Enrollment Services will host the Annual Transforming Student Success Conference on October 19-21, 2017. The conference will build on the university's student success programs, services, and initiatives, which has led to a nearly 90% retention rate. Share your passion for student success by submitting a proposal that showcases evidence-based theories and practices.

CONFERENCE TRACKS

The conference features three tracks: pre-college, college, and professional).

- The Pre-College track features sessions focused on raising awareness and inspiring high school students to pursue college majors, earn their degrees, and lead successful lives. The sessions will help introduce students to various UCF opportunities, programs, and support services as well as potential career options. The session presenters will share valuable advice and guidance to high school students as they prepare for their college careers and beyond.
- The College track features sessions focused on increasing access to UCF's co-curricular and student leadership opportunities, programs, support services, and resources. The sessions aim to help students obtain their degree. Topics will range from mentorship to preparing for graduate school and beyond.
- The Professional track features sessions to support professionals working primarily with male college students. The track features sessions on research that impact male students, content specifically for males and high risk populations, and culturally relevant dialogue and discussions. Topics will range from co-curricular programming to access, quality and success.

SPONSORS

The conference is sponsored by UCF's Division of Student Development and Enrollment Services, Multi-cultural Academic and Support Services, Florida TRiO, UCF's TRiO Center, and UCF's Division of Communications and Marketing.
